

BE A PART OF AFR HISTORY!

The Department of African American Studies' first academic minor is finally launched!

The Black Visual Cultures Minor . . . is available to all students in any academic major with 12 or more credits in General Education Flexible Common Core and the College Option Requirements. Students will be able to declare and begin working on academic minor courses, at the earliest, during their second semester of enrollment at City Tech.

What exactly is a minor?

An academic minor is a path of study designed to enable students to pursue a second field of specialization. Academic minors are intended to officially recognize students' attainment of knowledge in more than one academic field and to encourage students' goals of broadening their education across academic disciplines.

What is this AFR minor all about?

The Black Visual Cultures minor within the Department of African American Studies encompasses a study of the history of traditional arts within Africa, the United States and the Caribbean such as painting, sculpture, and printmaking, in addition to topics that fall within our more expansive visual culture including the history of photography, illustration, the graphic arts, and media. In addition, there is also a place-based learning component to the minor.

For the successful production of this informational material, many thanks to Alberto Vargas, Video Director; James Leung, John Reid Curry and Julio Arroyo of the The Center for Student Accessibility; and Dr. Renata Ferdinand of the Department of African American Studies

For more information,
please visit these links:
Academic Minors
Black Visual Cultures Minor

For additional questions, please contact
Professor Emilie Boone Program Director of the AFR Minor in Black Visual Cultures, at ecboone@citytech.cuny.edu